

LETTER TO FUTURE SELF (JUNE 2026):

Dear future me, I hope you enjoyed your senior year and made a ton of memories with your friends. I'm hoping you finally opened up a bit and made at least 1 new friend during senior year. I'm curious as to whether or not you finally got a job because senior year was for sure not cheap, so I'm hoping you did find a job. Hopefully you ended up going to senior prom with you-know-who, unless you guys aren't an item anymore, but oh well. I'm hoping senior year does not involve any drama and problems in friendships because you don't need that on your plate. You better have participated in any school activities since it was your last year, and I know you love making memories, and sometimes you hold yourself back because you don't want to be social. Are you still wanting to be a nurse? If not, what do you want to be now? Is Fresno State still on the book for college after high school? Are you deciding to still go to West Hills for 2 years? If you took senior portraits, did you end up liking them? You better have taken senior portraits. I'm hoping you also studied for your driver's license because I'm not trying to fail that test, and I want it by the time I turn 18 during June. I'm so proud of you for coming this far and putting your academics first because you don't want to fail yourself, and I hope you continued that during senior year. I can't wait to see what our future holds for us, and hopefully we do something we love and enjoy doing. I hope you made a lot of memories to look back at and remember the moment. During Christmas I hope you finally got the digital camera you've been wanting for so long. Did you enjoy your classes as a senior? Hopefully you did, and they weren't too stressful for you. Hopefully those culinary classes made you confident in cooking finally without burning everything. You need to become more open and care less about what others think of you because it holds you back and you hesitate. Do things that make you nervous even if you don't want to, do new things because you only live once. It doesn't feel good to know that you miss opportunities because you don't want to be judged by others. The world will always be judgmental, so you might as well do things you want because they will judge either way. If you want to become a nurse, you will need to learn to talk to others and stop being so shy and nervous. Once you do it, you will feel relief and will think, "That wasn't so bad." Don't let your nerves get the best of you. Don't hold grudges on people even if you don't want to talk to them. I know you'll never be rude because your heart is too full of kindness and love for others. I would hope that you got closer to God or at least tried too because you keep pushing it aside, and I know you want to get closer to him, so you need to try harder before you regret it. With God you'll never be alone. Let your inner child out and continue to love what you're doing, don't let anyone bring you down.
